CODE P3032 [V2]

AHCC® (Active Hexose Correlated Compound) is a patented formulation produced from several types of Basidiomycetes family mushrooms, including Shiitake. These mushrooms are uniquely grown in rice bran extract.

AHCC® was developed in Japan in 1989, and most of the studies with AHCC® supplements have been conducted in Japan where it is considered a super food. Many beneficial qualities of mushrooms can be traced to the special polysaccharides they contain. Polysaccharides are large, chain-like molecules built from many smaller sugar molecules. Certain polysaccharides in mushrooms have been widely used for their immune-supporting properties.

As a result of extensive research in humans and numerous non-clinical studies, AHCC® has been shown to support immune system functions through its effects on macrophages and NK (Natural Killer) Cells.* NK cells are critical for the maintenance of healthy cell cycle function. AHCC® has also been shown to possess outstanding antioxidant properties, and can help to support healthy liver functions.

This Protocol For Life Balance™ formula is suitable for vegetarians and is offered in Vcaps®.*
