Immune-supporting properties.*
Elder (Sambucus nigra) is a small tree indigenous to Europe and to Western and Central Asia and the use of its berry and flower dates back to ancient Rome. More recently, Elderberry has been recognized for its high nutritive value. Elderberry provides both Vitamins A and C, as well as anthocyanins, which are potent free radical scavengers. In addition, clinical and non-clinical studies have demonstrated Elderberry's immune-supporting properties.*
