Serious Support When You Need it Most

When your defenses need serious support, Black Mustard Seed delivers. Its seeds provide sinigrin, which is one of a family of compounds from cruciferous vegetables called glucosinolates. In the body, sinigrin is converted into cell-protecting AITC (allyl-isothiocyanate), and plays a critical role in health and longevity.*

While these compounds are also found in kale, Brussels sprouts, and broccoli, Black Mustard Seed is a highly concentrated source, standardized for a minimum of 25% glucosinolates for optimal well being.*
