What is Resveratrol?

Resveratrol, a substance found in grape skins and seeds and red wine, is an antioxidant polyphenol. Resveratrol is produced by many plants in response to environmental stressors such as drought, UV radiation from sunlight and fungal infections.

As an antioxidant, resveratrol works at the cellular level to protect healthy cells from free radical damage.* Scientific evidence indicates that resveratrol is responsible for the cardioprotective properties of red wine.*

Trans-resveratrol, the biologically active form of resveratrol, is the most studied resveratrol isomer.*

What are the key benefits of VitaCost® Trans-Resveratrol?

A natural antioxidant for cardiovascular health.*
