Why protein powder has been proven to improve muscle building in elite athletes and is generally seen to be a good source of protein. However, are you getting everything you want from your protein powder? Chances are you aren't, because for the majority of people the traditional whey protein powder only aids in building muscle when the diet is inadequate of protein from food. What if I told you there was a new kid on the block? (no not NKOTB - though they were cool at the time) And what if I told you that using this protein 'step by step' will promote more muscle mass than using whey protein? You got it! HCPP is "the right stuff!"

What's more HCPP (Hydrolyzed Collagen Protein Peptides) is a protein powder proven to promote both muscle growth and fat loss, is gluten and dairy free, is an alkalizing protein and doesn't cause bloating like whey can!

NOWAY BodyBalance™ Peptides are protein chains that are delivered to target tissue directly; once at target site they work like a key in a lock to force change and simultaneously supply the required amino acid to make that change possible. Most other protein sources (dietary or supplemental) will just be a source of amino acids and have no power to control how or where these amino acids work. Give NOWAY BodyBalance™ a go.
