

TestroVax™

[testrothione™] 2700 mg

A group of 43 men were divided into two groups: 1) the functional compound in TestroVax group and 2) an indistinguishable placebo group. All subjects consumed their test product every morning at breakfast for 12 consecutive days, and blood samples were taken before use, after 6 and 12 days of use, and 3 days after stopping use. All blood samples were drawn between 9:30-10:30 a.m., a time of day when serum oscillations of testosterone are at their minimum. Results showed that serum testosterone levels in the experimental group were significantly increased compared to those of the placebo group over the course of the study, wherein the key compound in TestroVax led to a 42.1% increase in testosterone after 12 days of use. Interestingly, 3 days after the suspension of use, testosterone was still significantly increased compared to baseline in the experimental group, showing a lasting effect.*
