L-Glutamine and Trans-Alanyl-Glutamine: Studies show that Glutamine plays a role in protein synthesis, and at the same time promotes an anabolic state by down-regulating catabolic activity. In fact, researchers are now suggesting that Glutamine might be the most important of all amino acids – as it provides a component in muscle metabolism and cellular support not shared by any other single amino acid®. For optimal nutrient uptake, the patent-pending pH Balanced Alkaline Buffering System pH-Sorb™ has been added, which is designed to directly influence the acidity levels of the stomach for optimal digestion.*†
