

Maca has been imported traditional food and medicinal plant for over 2000 years. Maca is naturally rich in essential minerals, especially selenium, calcium, magnesium and iron, and fatty acid including; linolenic acid, palmitic acid, oleic acid and 19 amino acids, as well as polysaccharides. Maca's reported benefits for sexual vigor and health could be due to its high concentration of protein and vital nutrients and the root's unique nutritional profile, which provides optimum levels of nutrients utilized by the body's endocrine system without adversely impacting hormone levels*
