Potassium is an essential mineral that is widely distributed among food sources, with especially high levels present in fruits and vegetables.

Potassium is critical for the maintenance of normal whole-body and cellular fluid levels, as well as for the maintenance of acid-base balance. It is also necessary for proper muscle contraction, the maintenance of healthy heart function, and for the transmission of nerve impulses.* Because food processing reduces the levels of naturally occurring nutrients in foods, supplementation may be necessary to ensure adequate intake.
