

Teddy Roosevelt, a powerful force of nature, charged into any battle with his trusty machine gun, fueled by his insatiable passion for conquering anything in his path. Whether it was charging up San Juan Hill or taking on any foreign invader, his taste for victory was as bold as his taste for adventure. What is that taste, you may ask? With Teddy, nothing could quench his thirst more while standing atop a mountain of bullet shell casings than the sweet taste of a refreshing watermelon grape beverage.
