Discussion: Rhodiola is a perennial plant native to cold regions, such as Tibet and Siberia, and has been used in traditional medicine for thousands of years. Rhodiola is known as an adaptogen, a unique class of herbs that help support the body's ability to deal with stress. Research suggests that the compounds found in rhodiola, rosavins and salidroside, may provide nutritive support for healthy stress levels as well as healthy stamina and energy production. †
