Andrew Lessman's TURMERIC 400 delivers our long-awaited Turmeric (Curcumin) Root extract standardized for Curcuminoids and complexed with "activating" phospholipids. Turmeric (Curcumin) is well-known as the pungent spice so prevalent in Asian cuisine, particularly, Indian curry. Following decades of research, scientists now recognize this unique spice as possessing extensive, wide-ranging health benefits. Turmeric's (Curcumin's) soothing role in joint health has been long established, as has its central role in any liver cleanse or digestive detoxification program. More recently, Turmeric (Curcumin) has been acknowledged for the protection it offers to delicate brain tissues, along with other fragile body structures. Unfortunately, creating an effective Turmeric (Curcumin) supplement is not as simple as placing some spice in a pill. As a spice, it is the flavor we seek, but as a health supplement, we must isolate, protect and facilitate the absorption of the beneficial Curcuminoids. We accomplish this by complexing these standardized Curcuminoids with Phosphatidylcholine (PC) – the predominant phospholipid found in the brain, liver and throughout the body. This unique phospholipid complex protects the Curcuminoids from digestive damage while also facilitating greater absorption. By "marrying" these natural ingredients, we ensure the greatest benefits from the remarkable protective compounds from this traditional spice.
