Pectin, a soluble dietary fiber naturally present in citrus fruit, cannot be absorbed by the human digestive tract. However, pectin can be modified to shorten the molecular chain. This process creates smaller polysaccharide fragments that are easily absorbed and utilized in the body. Source Naturals MODIFIED CITRUS PECTIN is made up of very short chains of molecules of the same molecular weight used in recent scientific studies. The constituents of MODIFIED CITRUS PECTIN that are believed to be responsible for its beneficial properties are the galactosyl fractions. Their toxin-binding properties in the bloodstream may help promote good health.*

The natural color of the powder may have slight variations.

Suggested Use: 1 heaping teaspoon (5 grams) daily. Mix in a blender with 8 ounces of water, juice, or other liquid and drink immediately. The powder's neutral taste mixes well with natural flavors in foods, beverages, and soups.
